Jesus Tells His Disciples of the Coming of the Holy Spirit

The six panels of Window 33 depict Christ's preaching and teaching. This panel shows Jesus talking to His disciples of the Holy Spirit.

"These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you. But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you. Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." — John 14:25-27 KJV

Find Window 33a by walking along the far-right aisle toward the altar from the back of The Church. This pane is in the fourth window toward the middle of the nave.

Stained-glass window directory cards are located in the pews.

ON THE COVER:

Christmas lights surround The Church's altar and are reflected in the bronze finial atop the baptismal font's oak cover. The 300-pound lid is crowned with the Agnus Dei — the Lamb of God — bearing a cross-embazoned banner, proclaiming Christ's victory through His sacrifice.

Come, Lord of the Harvest

"Come, ye thankful people, come, raise the song of harvest-home..."

When we lived in rural upstate New York, we frequently saw a bumper sticker — usually on beat-up old trucks — that said "No Farmers, No Food." Apart from being a plain statement of fact, it was also a statement of pride. The rolling hills of Otsego County surrounding the picturesque village of Cooperstown are still dotted with small farms, and the folks who had devoted their lives to working that rich land were proud to provide food for their families and their communities. Without their work, there would be no harvest.

God in His mercy has appointed you and me to work together in the field that is His world. He will grant the growth. He will bless the harvest.

Our frequent trips to the gleaming, fluorescent-lit aisles of the Price Chopper grocery store on the edge of town were supplemented by a weekly visit to the Cooperstown Farmers' Market, held every Saturday in the little market hall in the heart of the village. The contrast between the two places was striking. Unlike the sanitized, standardized, mass-produced consistency of a modern American supermarket, the Farmers' Market showed a more earthy side of food production. Vegetables still had some dirt clinging to their leaves and roots. They varied in shape, size and color from week to week and from farmer's stall to farmer's stall. Eggs were brown, or speckled blue, or deep blood red — nearly every color imaginable, save plain white. Local cheese tasted different depending on what the cows had eaten when they were milked.

The Turn of the Seasons

And everything changed with the season. The splendor of true summer strawberries lasted only a few short weeks — but oh, were they glorious! Fresh chickens for roasting were only available at certain times of the year. Apples overflowed in the fall, root vegetables were piled high in the winter and bright greens burst forth in the spring and summer. The harvest was always abundant and abundantly different as our Earth steadily made its annual march around the sun.

As the days grow shorter and the heat finally abates here in Houston, we remember that our common life still depends on the turn of the seasons, the work of human hands and the fruitfulness that God has given to our land. Thanksgiving — my favorite holiday, both in Church and at home — calls us to pause our ordinary busyness and rejoice in the wonder of abundant harvests, made possible only by the labor of farmers and the goodness of the Lord.

And as we begin a new liturgical year in Advent, we look beyond that annual earthly harvest to another, greater harvest. We look to that time when the changing seasons themselves — the rhythm of summer and winter, seedtime and harvest, unbroken since the foundation of the world — will at last be brought to an end. "For the Lord our God shall come, and shall take His harvest home; from His field shall in that day all offenses purge away..."

In Advent, we acknowledge that not everything we see around us, nor everything we see within us, is fit for our Lord's harvest. There are weeds in our world and weeds in our hearts. And yet the annual promise of this holy season is that Christ Jesus, who once came in great humility, will come again "in glorious majesty to judge both the quick and the dead." Our Lord will complete the victory He won on the Cross, and finally and decisively defeat the evil that still lingers in this creation and in ourselves. And He will gather us, as part of His glorious harvest, safe within His garner forever.

Laboring Until the Harvest-Home

In the meantime, we continue to labor here below. In season and out, winter and summer, we take our part in the Lord's vineyard, rejoicing that He has chosen even such unworthy workers to share in what His Spirit is accomplishing. No farmers, no food. No laborers, no harvest. God in His mercy has appointed you and me to work together in the field that is His world. He will grant the growth. He will bless the harvest.

*"Even so, Lord, quickly come to thy final harvest-home;
gather thou thy people in, free from sorrow, free from sin;
there, forever purified, in thy presence to abide;
come, with all thine angels, come, raise the glorious harvest-home!"*

The Rev. Dane E. Boston
Rector, St. Martin's Episcopal Church

A New Chapter: St. Martin's Welcomes Vice Rector the Rev. Dr. Andrew T. Grosso

Two decades of parish leadership and theological teaching brought him here, but it's the first two weeks that are already telling the story.

The Rev. Dr. Grosso and his wife, Diana, greet Parishioners during a welcome reception in Bagby Parish Hall on Sept. 6.

The Rev. Dane E. Boston, Rector, and the Rev. Dr. Andrew Grosso lead the procession from The Church on Sept. 6 following the combined Family Table and Traditional service.

On Aug. 31, 2026, St. Martin's Episcopal Church welcomed the Rev. Dr. Andrew Grosso as Vice Rector, arriving just weeks ahead of the retirement of our Vice Rector, the Rev. Martin J. Bastian on Sept. 27.

Fr. Andrew comes to us from Saint Michael and All Angels Episcopal Church in Dallas, where he most recently served as Senior Associate for Discipleship — one of several roles in a career that spans more than two decades of parish leadership, theological teaching and administrative experience.

"I'm very grateful for the heartfelt welcome and encouragement I've received from both Parishioners and Staff," said Fr. Grosso. "I've only been here a few weeks, and already it's apparent to me there's a lot of faithfulness, a lot of warmth, and a lot of energy at St. Martin's.

I've very much enjoyed worshiping with the community, hearing about the many vibrant ministries, and learning the ins and outs of working alongside the staff. I look forward to seeing what God will call us to do together in the years ahead as we strive to be faithful in our proclamation of the Gospel both in word and deed."

Leadership Formed by Parish Ministry and Teaching

Raised in northern Michigan, Fr. Grosso earned a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology from Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Mich.; a Master of Arts in Theology and Educational Ministry from Wheaton College in Wheaton, Ill.; and a Master of Divinity from the University of the South in Seawee, Tenn. He later completed a Doctor of Philosophy in Systematic Theology and Ethics at Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wis.

His path moved between the parish and the classroom, often at the same time. In 2014, he joined Trinity Episcopal Cathedral in Columbia, S.C., first as Canon to the Dean and then as Acting Dean in 2020. During a period of leadership transition, he helped oversee the restructuring of the endowment portfolio, guiding the vestry through a strategic plan rewrite while also addressing the challenges of the COVID pandemic.

Alongside his parish work, Fr. Grosso built a substantial career in theological education. He served as Dean of the Bishop Kemper School for Ministry in Kansas, taught as an instructor at the Stanton Center for Ministry in Dallas, and led courses — in seminars, hybrid formats and online — for students ranging from traditional seminarians to working adults.

At Nashotah House Theological Seminary, this commitment reached its fullest expression: he first served as Director of Distance Learning and later as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, while also holding appointments as Research Professor of Philosophical Theology and Affiliate Professor of Systematic Theology.

In 2023, after years of balancing academic leadership with parish ministry, he joined Saint Michael and All Angels in Dallas, first as Associate for Worship and Liturgy and then as Senior Associate for Discipleship, a role he held until coming to St. Martin's Episcopal Church.

Lessons from a Season of Transition

Fr. Grosso said one of the most important lessons he's learned from overseeing strategic planning — particularly during changes resulting from a leadership transition — is the need to prioritize spiritual growth in any strategic initiative.

“Our first goal should always be to discern how God is calling us to draw closer to Him and to grow in our faith so that we might be more effective in our proclamation of the Gospel. Strategic initiatives not oriented towards substantive spiritual growth have a way of leading nowhere, but initiatives grounded in a lively sense of God's call to a deeper life of faith and commitment to mission can be truly transformative.”

That conviction has shaped how he thinks about Christian formation more broadly — helping people become, in his words, mature disciples of Christ through teaching, practice and life together in the Church.

“Two important characteristics of effective formation that immediately come to mind have to do with (first) helping people ground their faith in the fullness of Christian teaching and practice (i.e., to ground their faith in those teachings and practices that bear witness to the ‘one, holy, catholic, and apostolic’ life of the church) and (second) enabling people to discern how God invites them to share in the mission and ministries of the Church,” he stated. “Growth in the life of faith is always not only an invitation to draw nearer to God, but it's also an opportunity to share more fully in the proclamation of the Church in both word and deed; we are formed for the sake of being better equipped for the work God calls each and every member of the Church to do.”

A Vision Rooted in Spiritual Growth

Throughout his ministry, Fr. Grosso emphasized that healthy congregations begin with spiritual formation. That foundation in God's calling also shapes his approach to Christian formation. This same conviction extends naturally to pastoral care, reflecting his belief that faith is nurtured and lived out in the context of Christian community.

“Growth in the life of faith is not only an invitation to draw nearer to God; it's also an opportunity to share more fully in the proclamation of the Church in both word and deed.”

“The most effective form of pastoral care is one that is oriented towards ‘preventive maintenance’ rather than towards ‘crisis management.’ The heart of pastoral care, I believe, lies in helping people pursue intentional spiritual growth so they are prepared when challenges arise ... helping the members of the Church learn to care for one another, so that when challenges arise, we find ourselves upheld by established supportive relationships,” he said.

Why St. Martin's?

When asked what drew him here, Fr. Grosso pointed to the congregation's sense of purpose and opportunity. “My conversation with Parishioners, members of the Staff and Fr. Boston clearly indicated St. Martin's is at an important inflection point in its life and mission, and the community is eager to engage both the opportunities and the challenges before them. That sense of a strong desire to move forward in a manner that is both faithful and strategic is very compelling for me.”

That eagerness to move forward strategically, he said, is part of why he sees his prospective role so clearly — particularly the partnership between Rector and Vice Rector as one centered on shared leadership. “I believe the Rector is the one who, working with the lay leaders of the congregation, helps develop and articulate the identity and mission of the congregation. The Vice Rector is the one who helps oversee the implementation of this identity and mission,” he stated.

Looking Ahead

Reflecting on his arrival, what he looked forward to most was simply becoming part of the Parish community. “I would like the community at St. Martin's to know how grateful I am to have the opportunity to join their fellowship and share in the great work they're doing. It is an exciting time for the Church, and I look forward to tackling the opportunities and the challenges before us in ways that will help us grow in our faith and strengthen our witness to Christ.”

Family Life

Fr. Grosso and his wife, Diana, have been married for 28 years. Diana is an accomplished oil painter whose work focuses on character studies. Both are settling into life in Houston and at St. Martin's. They're joined by their cat, Tyndale, named after the English reformer and Bible translator William Tyndale because she came into their lives on his feast day.

We look forward to the many ways they will enrich our Parish as we continue God's work together.

Celebrating 30 Years of Faithful Ministry

After 30 years of service to this community, the Rev. Martin J. Bastian retired as Vice Rector of St. Martin's Episcopal Church on Sept. 27, 2026. During his time on Staff, he served thousands of Parishioners as Priest and trusted friend, walking with them through heartbreak, joy and all the ordinary moments of life.

During his final 18 months, Fr. Bastian helped lead the Parish through a significant transition while carrying the pastoral burden of ministering to grieving families and the community following the Hill Country Floods. In a communication addressed to the Parish on July 16, the Rev. Dane E. Boston shared his personal thoughts about Fr. Bastian's leadership and imminent retirement. "Marty's calm strength and cheerful hope have inspired and supported me in more ways than I can say throughout my first year as your Rector.

His leadership of the Parish during 18 months of transition encompassed both the ordinary challenges of preparing a Vestry and Staff for a new chapter after a long and fruitful ministry, and the unthinkable pastoral burden of ministering to grieving families and our whole community after the Hill Country Floods. In all this, and so much more, Marty has been a pillar of strength and stability for the people of St. Martin's through a turbulent time."

Reflecting on the transition, the Rev. Boston returned to words from the Benedicite, a canticle at Morning Prayer.

"O ye people of God, bless ye the Lord; O ye priests of the Lord, bless ye the Lord; O ye servants of the Lord, bless ye the Lord; praise Him and magnify Him for ever," he said, adding: "Here at St. Martin's, the Lord has given us people, priests and faithful servants."

A Story Already in Motion

When Fr. Bastian arrived at St. Martin's Episcopal Church in 1996, he stepped into a story already unfolding for generations. The Parish's founding Rector, the Rev. Tom Bagby, shared with him a vision of St. Martin's as a generational Church — a place where faith would be handed from one generation to the next through worship, education, service and Christian community.

That vision continued under the leadership of the Rev. Claude Payne, the Rev. Dr. Laurence Gipson, the Rev. Dr. Russell J. Levenson, Jr., and has now been passed to the Rev. Dane E. Boston.

"To have been a part of that continuity, to have stepped into a story already in motion, has been one of the greatest honors of my life," he stated. "This Church formed me as a priest. I arrived here as a young man, eager and perhaps a bit naive, but this community took me in and shaped me."

A Parish That Became Home

Fr. Bastian sees his own ministry as shaped by countless faithful people whose quiet witness formed his vocation. "I often think of those early days as a Curate, where the very rhythms of our worship and the quiet dedication of the Altar Guild began to make me into the priest I am today," he reflected. "As a Curate, worship formed me. From the steady guidance of Clergy mentors to the selfless leadership of our lay ministers — who sacrifice their time and talent through the wisdom and guidance of the Vestry and Senior Council — I learned that ministry is not found in a title but in the shared life of a faithful people."

St. Martin's Star weekly newsletter from June 1996 announcing the arrival of the Rev. Martin J. Bastian on July 15.

A Ministry of Presence

That calling unfolded far beyond the Altar and the pulpit. Over the years, Fr. Bastian has celebrated countless baptisms and weddings, preached at funerals and walked beside families through some of life's most sacred and heartbreaking moments.

It is a ministry of presence that has given him "the grace to be a servant first and a leader second," teaching him the vital lesson of being "quick to listen and slow to speak," he said. "I've held countless babies at baptisms and performed hundreds of weddings. People often ask me if it gets old. I always say, 'No!' How can the miracle of new life or the promise of resurrection ever become commonplace? I've always believed in a ministry of presence. Being there for people in good times and bad."

Pointing People to Christ

As Fr. Bastian reflects on his years at St. Martin's, his deepest gratitude belongs not to any one accomplishment but to the congregation that welcomed him, inspired him, trusted and empowered him to grow into the priest he was called to become.

"I want to express my deepest thanks to this entire congregation for your unwavering love and support over the years," he said.

"You have changed me and taught me that the most powerful witness is not found in what we say, but in what we do — the same way Jesus drew people to Himself through His actions and His humility."

An Expression of Gratitude

As he prepared for this new chapter, Fr. Bastian returned to the Scripture that has guided his ministry from the beginning — Philippians 2:5-11, where St. Paul calls believers to “have the same mindset as Christ Jesus,” whose humility and servant heart became a model for Christian leadership.

“My prayer is that through the Word and through my presence among you, I have lived up to that calling,” he shared. “Keep Christ at the center of all you do. Pursue truth, always striving to know God better. Though I may be retiring from my role, you will always be etched into my heart. Go in peace and may the blessing of God Almighty be upon you now and forevermore.”

The Gospel does not retire.
The love of Christ does not loosen its hold when one servant steps aside.

A Final Word

On Sept. 25, 2026, two days before his retirement took effect, Fr. Bastian offered the Parish a final Daily Word — a farewell drawn from Scripture and three decades of shared life.

“I thank my God every time I remember you. In all my prayers for all of you, I always pray with joy because of your partnership in the gospel from the first day until now, being confident of this, that he who began a good work in you will carry it on to completion until the day of Christ Jesus.” — Philippians 1:3-6, NIV

“Thirty years ago, you called me,” he wrote. “You did not call a finished priest. You called a man still being formed, still learning how to listen, how to lead, and how to love a people well. And in ways I could not have imagined then, you became the very place where that forming happened. For that, I thank my God every time I remember you.”

“From the first day until now, you have been partners in the Gospel with me,” he continued. “You opened your homes and your hearts. You let me stand beside you at baptisms and weddings, at hospital beds and gravesides, in seasons of laughter and in nights of sorrow. You sat through sermons that were still finding their way. You trusted me with your joys, your griefs, your children, and your dying. You corrected me when I needed it and forgave me when I failed. You prayed for me when I could not pray for myself. In a hundred quiet ways, many of which only God fully knows, you raised me up. Whatever good has been done in this Parish was never mine alone. It was Christ's work begun in you and carried forward through our life together.”

“I leave with humility, not because these years were small, but because they were more precious than I know how to name,” he wrote. “This community of faith called me, supported me, bore with me, and by the Spirit's patient work helped shape the priest I became. I carry your faces, your stories, your kindness, and your faith with me. I am more grateful than I can say.”

“Paul's confidence is now my own: the One who began this good work will carry it on to completion,” he said. “The Gospel does not retire. The love of Christ does not loosen its hold when one servant steps aside. God remains faithful to this congregation. He will keep forming pastors and people, keep binding wounds, keep proclaiming hope, keep setting a table in the presence of every friend and enemy, until the day of Christ Jesus.”

“So, I bid you farewell not as one who is finished, but as one who has been held,” he wrote. “Thank you for the call. Thank you for the years. Thank you for your patience, your prayers, your laughter, your forgiveness, and your love. Thank you for letting me belong to you while you belonged to Christ.”

“May the God who began this good work among us keep you in His joy, His peace, and His unfinished, unstoppable grace. Amen.”

“Therefore, God exalted him to the highest place and gave him the name that is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, in heaven and earth, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.”

From the Diocese of Texas

“St. Martin's is so very grateful for Marty's long ministry, as are the many families at Episcopal High School. He and I have served together for many years, and I give thanks for the sabbath ahead of him and look forward to seeing how he will minister and continue to bring his priesthood to benefit many more in the Lord's name.”

— The Rt. Rev. C. Andrew Doyle — Ninth Bishop of Texas

From St. James' Episcopal Church

“The people of St. James' give thanks to God for your excellent service as Vice Rector of St. Martin's and your loving partnership in the ministry and mission of our Lord Jesus Christ in Houston. ... Your ministry's impact and influence extend beyond St. Martin's to the entire diocese. ... I consider you among the bright lights of our Church and a true friend.”

— The Rev. Victor J. Thomas, Rector and Vestry — St. James' Episcopal Church, Houston

The Ordinary Christian Life

God often does His deepest work not in life's extraordinary moments, but in the faithful rhythms of everyday life.

Do you feel exceptional? Or do you feel ordinary? If you are like me, ordinary is a more apt barometer of how I feel daily. But embracing the ordinariness of life can also lead to feelings of inadequacy and even a diminished sense of self-worth. Feelings of insufficiency are heightened by a culture that is captivated by the extraordinary — the remarkable achievement, the latest app that promises foreign language fluency, and the unforgettable vacation (triumphantly displayed through social media platforms).

We love to celebrate mountaintop moments, life-changing decisions and stories of spectacular success. By contrast, the ordinary often feels dull and forgettable. The daily grind of routine alarm clocks, commutes through dense traffic and the relentless pile of laundry can make one feel as though they are on a never-ending hamster wheel of predictability. Sometimes the Christian life can feel monotonous, too, leading us to quietly wonder whether faithfulness in such ordinary circumstances can really matter all that much.

Yet Scripture tells a different story. While God occasionally works through dramatic miracles and extraordinary events, most spiritual growth takes place in the steady rhythms of everyday life. A Christ-like character is formed not in moments of excitement but in ritual habits of the simple and ordinary.

This brings us to the term “ordinary.” You have probably come across the word in Church.

The word “ordinary” comes from the Latin word “ordo,” which means “order, or sequence.” The same Latin root gives us English words like “ordination” and “orderly.” In the Episcopal Church, it can refer to the office of the bishop, as the ecclesiastical authority who exercises authority (or “order”) in the Church. More commonly, however, in the Church it refers to a season of “ordered” time in the Church calendar. Ordinary Time is the period between the major feasts and seasons.

These ordered weeks developed over time as the church began to structure its worship around the major events in Christ’s life. Christmas proclaims that the Messiah has come. Good Friday and Easter proclaim that Christ has died and risen. Pentecost proclaims that the Spirit has been given to the church. Over time, other seasons developed, such as Lent, Advent, and Holy Week. As these major celebrations took shape, the remaining weeks in the year needed their own structure (or, ordo). So, the Church gradually developed a system of numbered Sundays between the great church festivals. This period in the Church calendar came to be known as “Ordinary Time.” Ordinary Time is the longest season of the year. It is a season of growth and discipleship. This is why the color green is especially fitting for this season.

The ordinary is not something to escape or look down upon; it is the very place where Christ meets us and shapes us.

But, with the risk of making a contradiction, there’s an extraordinary aspect to this ordinary season. This is because it’s in the ordinary rhythms of life that growth occurs.

Our Episcopal (or Anglican) worship is intentionally repetitive. We do the same things over and over again. Each week we gather, confess, hear Scripture, pray, exchange peace, give thanks, receive Communion, and are sent into the world. That repetition isn’t an empty routine. It is formation. God works through the repeated practice of these ordinary things. This is because Christ is present in the ordinary.

This is true of our ordinary daily routines, too. The routine things we do each day: the commute, folding the laundry, reading a bedtime story to our children, and yes, even checking the work email. All these seemingly mundane tasks can be conduits for God to work. Christ is there. The Christian task is to be attentive to His presence and to reorient the mundane and ordinary back to God.

When we do this, the ordinary becomes extraordinary, and the result is growth. So, as you continue your journey through Ordinary Time and engage in ordinary life, remember to embrace the ordinary. For it is in the faithful repetition of ordinary things that God quietly forms us into the people he has called us to be. The ordinary is not something to escape or look down upon; it is the very place where Christ meets us and shapes us.

The Psalms, Anglican Chant and the Spiritual Power of Sung Prayer

Through music, memory and Evensong, St. Martin's invites Parishioners to hear the Psalms as living prayer.

Keith Lathrom, Director of Music, leads Parishioners through a new way of hearing the Psalms during the Aug. 9 Theology for Life class in The Church.

Same Words, Different Key: How Music Reshapes the Psalms

On Sunday, Aug. 9, after the 9 a.m. service, something unusual happened at St. Martin's: few Parishioners got up to leave the pews. Instead of filing out to Bagby Parish Hall for the week's Theology for Life class, worshipers stayed where they were as Keith Lathrom, Director of Music, invited them to hear the Psalms in a new way — not simply as ancient words to be read but as a living prayer shaped by music, memory and the gathered voice of the Church.

The congregation first learned a portion of Psalm 85, sung to a familiar melody. Once they had it, Lathrom asked Principal Organist John Meier to play the very same tune again — but in a minor key. The words on the page hadn't changed. Nothing had been added or removed. But the Psalm sounded like a different text entirely:

heavier, more searching and tinged with an unease the major-key version hadn't carried.

Principal Organist John Meier plays Psalm 85 in a minor key, illustrating how music shapes the way Parishioners receive and remember Scripture.

"By changing the mode in which the music is, we can affect the text and how we receive it," Lathrom explained. "It's one of the ways that we can express the text of the Psalm by just changing the music that is offered with it." It was a simple demonstration with a large point: music doesn't just decorate Scripture. It shapes how we hear it.

The Oldest Hymnbook in the Church

That point was the centerpiece of Lathrom's class, "The Prayer Book and Anglican Music," part of St. Martin's ongoing Theology for Life series.

The book of Psalms is the book of the Bible read most often in Church services, Lathrom told the class. "The Psalms are poetry, prayer, drama, advice and praise," he said. "They were also the original hymns of God's people." Their use in worship stretches back further than the Church itself, from Jewish prayer into Christian worship and, eventually, into the Anglican tradition, where the 1662 Book of Common Prayer describes the Psalter as “the psalms of David pointed as they are to be sung or said in churches.”

For centuries, Christians have turned to these same ancient words to find language for nearly every human experience — joy, thanksgiving, grief, fear, repentance, hope — set to melodies both ancient and new.

Why Sing, Not Just Say?

“When we use music to express text, it sticks with us a lot longer than when we would just say it,” Lathrom explained. “And there’s a lot of science behind that. That’s why we’ve begun singing them. ... hopefully these texts of the Psalms will stick with us through our daily life throughout the week, not just on Sunday.”

The minor-key demonstration wasn’t the only tool Lathrom used to make that case. Working through Psalm 85 verse by verse, Lathrom asked the class to listen as the organ’s sound shifted in response to specific words such as “fear,” “glory,” “mercy,” “peace,” and “loving kindness.” Registration, tone and tempo, he noted, allow a musician to do what a preacher does with emphasis and pause: to draw out meaning that’s already present in the text, but easy to miss when read aloud.

You Don’t Need to Read Music

The musical tradition at the center of all this is Anglican chant — a style in which the flowing, unmeasured language of the Psalms is set to a repeating musical formula, rather than to the fixed rhythms of a hymn. Because the Psalms weren’t written as poetry with regular meter, Anglican chant is built to bend around the text instead of forcing the words into a strict beat.

To help singers follow along, printed Psalters mark the text with small symbols — called “pointing” — that show exactly where each syllable falls against the musical phrase. It looks intimidating at first glance, but Lathrom was quick to lower the stakes. “You are not required to be notationally literate here,” he told the class. “All you have to be able to do is find the symbols.”

With a little repetition, he said, the system becomes intuitive — and musical skill, or the lack of it, is beside the point. “I would encourage everyone, regardless of your musical ability or experience, whether you can hold a tune in a bucket or not, to participate,” Lathrom said. “It is not a performance. It is to make a joyful noise unto the Lord. It is to worship. It is your way of reciting the Psalms.”

Congregational singing, he emphasized, isn’t about a polished sound. It’s about adding one voice among many to the Church’s shared prayer.

An Ancient Prayer, Sung by a Present-Day Church

The Psalms themselves are thousands of years old, but the musical settings used to sing them are often much newer — even when the melodies draw on ancient plainchant roots. That combination, Lathrom argued, is part of what gives the practice its power: old words, renewed continually by new music and new voices.

Parishioners don’t have to wait for another Theology for Life class to experience it. St. Martin’s is carrying that tradition forward through a new Choral Evensong service that was introduced on Sunday, Sept. 13, at 4 p.m. in The Church. It follows the historic 30-day Psalm cycle, with the Parish Choir singing complete Psalms — sometimes several in a single service — each set to a different chant.

For newcomers, the invitation is simple: come listen first. No musical background is required, and the Parish Choir carries the bulk of the singing. It’s an opportunity to experience Psalms differently than on a typical Sunday morning — not just hearing what the words say but hearing how the music gives them shape. Evensong offers Parishioners the chance to experience what Lathrom demonstrated in the Theology for Life class: Scripture heard not only through words but through sound, silence, harmony and prayer.

“If the Psalms are hard, and you’re really trying on the Psalms,” Lathrom said, “the thought is that the hymns will be easier to sing.” He closed the class by invoking St. Basil of Caesarea, who called the Psalms “the voice of the Church” — a fitting description of what happens when a congregation sings ancient words across generations, in one room.

“We sing them together as a congregation in a choir whose members, from our youngest Choristers to our wisest and most experienced Parishioners, may span nearly a century of life,” Lathrom reflected. “In that moment, the words, melodies, and generations of people [are] joined together in a single act of prayer.”

The Psalms give us words when we have none of our own, and music when words alone aren’t enough. In Evensong, they turn an ancient prayer into our prayer — and when we sing them together, they remind us that we never pray alone.

From Humble Path, A Legacy

As is our tradition in years past, we will reflect this day on our Patron Saint – Martin of Tours.

SOLDIER, PRIEST, BISHOP AND SERVANT OF GOD

Martin was born around 316 in Savaria (modern-day Szombathely, Hungary), a Roman province. Raised in Italy, he joined the Roman army, following in his father's footsteps. During his military service, Martin performed the act for which he is best remembered: on a freezing night at the gates of Amiens, he encountered a poorly clothed beggar and, having nothing else to give, cut his own military cloak in half and gave a piece to the man. That night, Martin dreamed of Christ wearing the half-cloak, saying to the angels around him, "Martin, still a catechumen, has clothed me." After converting to Christianity, his faith clashed with military life — he resigned, was jailed as a traitor and then released.

Choosing a humble path, Martin became a monk, founded Gaul — an ancient region of Western Europe — its first monastery, traveling by donkey and boat to share the message of Jesus. Renowned for healing prayers, Martin was made Bishop of Tours in 371 and became one of Christianity's most beloved evangelists. He died in 397, and his legacy lives on — more churches in the Middle Ages bore his name than any other saint. For more than 1,600 years, Nov. 11 has been celebrated as St. Martin's Day.

ST. MARTIN'S DAY CELEBRATION Sunday, Nov. 8

THE CHRISTMAS OUTREACH OFFERING

The Christmas Outreach Offering is a longstanding tradition at St. Martin's. We truly have so much for which to be thankful, and we are blessed to share our gifts with others in the community through this Outreach offering. Your generosity, especially at this time of year, will bring hope to others.

Offerings can be made online or in person and may be placed on the offering plate during the Advent and Christmas worship services.

Envelopes are available in the pews and on display in The Church and in Christ Chapel during December.

A CHRISTMAS OFFERING

Dear Fellow Parishioners,

Isaiah 9:6 reminds us of the miraculous gift of Jesus' birth: "For unto us a child is born, to us a son is given, and the government will be on his shoulders. And he will be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace."

On that holy night long ago, the Word became flesh and the Prince of Peace came to dwell among us.

This Christmas season, we can extend that peace beyond the walls of our beloved St. Martin's through our annual Christmas Offering. This cherished tradition allows us to share the blessings God has given us with those in our community who need them. Your generosity, especially during this season of giving, will bring hope and Christ's love to others.

We invite you to use the enclosed Christmas offering envelope to make your gift and return it to the Church by Christmas Day. On behalf of the Vestry, Clergy and Staff, we wish you and your loved ones a blessed and joyful Christmas, filled with Christ's love, peace and abundant grace.

Faithfully yours,

The Rev. Dane E. Boston

WEDDINGS AT ST. MARTIN'S

A wedding is one of life's most joyful thresholds — a season of anticipation, hope, and a new beginning not just for the couple, but for their families and all who love them. Because marriage in the Church is a sacrament rooted in the life of the Parish, weddings at St. Martin's are reserved for couples with an active, ongoing connection to our community. Specifically, the bride, groom, or one of their parents must be a member in good standing – be baptized, confirmed in the Episcopal Church, make and maintain an annual stewardship pledge and attend Church services at St. Martin's on a regular basis.

At St. Martin's, we consider it a privilege to walk alongside couples as they prepare for this sacred step.

For more information, contact Allie Hippard, Wedding Coordinator, at ahippard@smec.org for guidance and support throughout the planning process.

A Year in the Making:

The Joy of Giving Market Rings in 36 Years of Holiday Magic Honoring its Co-founder Kathy Tellepsen

Months of prayer, planning, and preparation will blossom into pure holiday magic as the Episcopal Church Women of St. Martin's host the 36th annual Joy of Giving Market from Oct. 13–15. The Joy of Giving Committee, along with more than 80 merchants and local artisans, will transform the Church Campus into a glittering, colorful wonderland of fellowship and festive shopping. Bagby Parish Hall, the Activity Center, the Parish Life Center, and the St. Martin's Gift Shoppe will feature art, décor, clothing, jewelry, home goods, gourmet delights and much more.

More than 1,400 visitors are expected on our Campus to shop over the three days, exploring booths in all three buildings, including the exterior hallways and the outdoor corridor connecting the Activity Center and Parish Life Center.

A Milestone Worth Celebrating

Thirty-six years is a long time for any Parish tradition to endure — and this year's Market carries special weight as a significant anniversary of something that began far smaller than the sparkling wonderland it has become.

In 1990, a small group of dedicated Parishioners created a fall bazaar on St. Martin's Campus. Among them was Kathy Tellepsen, who served as the Episcopal Church Women President at the time and, alongside Kathy Buck, co-founded what would grow into the Joy of Giving Market.

In its earliest form, the event supported local ministries directly and modestly — Tellepsen recalled donations to organizations like House of Tiny Treasures, a Third Ward ministry providing free daycare for families without housing, and the purchase of a commercial soup cooker for St. James House, an Episcopal Diocese of Texas nursing home and rehabilitation facility in Baytown.

Since 2005 alone, the Market has raised more than $1 million for outreach ministries across the greater Houston area — a scale Tellepsen herself has watched unfold with something like wonder.

"I am so impressed with how the Joy of Giving Market has grown and how it is managed," Tellepsen said. "It is in a different league than what it was 25-plus years ago! Like everything that starts small and grows big, you must have a solid core to start. The Market has been nurtured and cared for by Servants of God for many years."

Three Decades of Best Practices

Growing an event from a folding-table bazaar into a three-building holiday market didn't happen by accident. Other longtime ECW leaders who worked alongside Tellepsen's founding generation point to decades of small refinements that, added together, transformed the Market's sales and reputation.

Merchants' check-in, for instance, used to mean a multitude of vendors arriving at the same time, which lent itself to a chaotic scramble that current volunteers on the ECW Joy of Giving Committee have streamlined into a staggered process. In the early years, booth assignments lived on a hand-drawn map marked with stickers and Post-it notes. That system has since become digitized. Even the Market's fundraising approach has changed: what began as a small silent auction tucked into a single room eventually outgrew its space and moved into the Activity Center.

Joy of Giving Co-Founder Kathy Tellepsen poses with her artwork on Oct. 15, 2024 during the 2024 Market in the Parish Life Center. Tellepsen helped launch the St. Martin's holiday bazaar in 1990, laying the foundation for a tradition that continues to bring Parishioners, merchants and shoppers together in fellowship.

A TRADITION CARRIED FORWARD —The Rev. Dane E. Boston joins the Joy of Giving Market Committee members and the Rev. Lisa Neilson to open the Market on Oct. 14, 2025. Since it first opened as a small holiday bazaar, generations of St. Martin's Parishioners have continued to build on its tradition of fellowship, service, and generosity.

Merchants consistently point to the level of hospitality as what sets St. Martin's apart from other holiday markets and church bazaars. Meals, snack breaks, and attentive volunteer support are what keep merchants returning — some have been part of the Joy of Giving Market since the beginning. Tellepsen sees the level of care and organization as an extension of the Market's original spirit: while the specifics have evolved, its foundation and mission of service in faith have remained the same.

Holiday Magic, Old and New

The 36th Market will open on Tuesday, Oct. 13, with an early-bird Premier Shopping Party that sets a festive tone for the next three days. Guests will enjoy a spread of hors d'oeuvres, including samples from the popular ECW Pantry menu, alongside the highly sought-after Wine Pull, a silent auction, and unique offerings from local merchants — traditions that, in one form or another, trace back to the bazaar Tellepsen helped launch three and a half decades ago.

That through-line, from a handful of volunteers with a folding table to a three-building event drawing over 1,400 shoppers, is exactly what Tellepsen points to as the Market's foundation: a "solid core" of purpose that has simply been built upon, year after year, by generations of willing St. Martin's volunteers.

Sustaining the Mission

This annual gathering remains the cornerstone fundraiser for the Episcopal Church Women of St. Martin's, supporting Outreach grants that reach organizations throughout the Greater Houston area and beyond — carrying forward, on a much larger scale, the same mission Tellepsen and her fellow founders set out to serve in 1990.

Looking back at the Joy of Giving's evolution, the 2026 Joy of Giving Committee members credit Tellepsen with building far more than a seasonal fundraiser. In their view, she created a sense of shared purpose that drew people together for a common cause, and her early vision and leadership laid the groundwork for what has since grown into one of Houston's most beloved annual traditions.

The Committee also expressed deep gratitude to Clergy, Staff and volunteers who dedicated their time and energy to this year's Market, along with the generous donors, loyal merchants and enthusiastic shoppers whose support allows our community to come together in service and joy.

SERVING UP THE JOY —Kathy Bennett and Kathy Tellepsen work the ECW Pantry during the Premier Party on Oct. 18, 2016. Hospitality and fellowship have remained central to the Market's appeal through its 36-year history.

MEN OF ST. MARTIN'S Bible Study

Led by the Rev. Alex Graham III

Thursday mornings* • 7 a.m. • Bagby Parish Hall

*MOSM will not meet on Oct. 15 due to the Joy of Giving Market, Nov. 26 due to Thanksgiving, Dec. 24 due to Christmas Eve and Dec. 31 for New Year's. Café St. Martin's offers breakfast at 6:45 a.m.

After spending the past year studying the Genesis, the Men of St. Martin's continue their journey through the Torah — the first five books of the Bible — with an in-depth study of Exodus, the Bible's second book.

Together, we're exploring how God remains faithful to the promises He made to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob as He leads the people of Israel out of slavery and into covenant with Him. Along the way, we will examine themes such as redemption, covenant, worship, holiness, and God's presence. We're also looking at the ways Exodus points us toward Jesus Christ, the true Passover Lamb, who delivers His people from sin and restores their fellowship with God.

For additional information about the Men of St. Martin's Bible study program and other events, please contact Deanna Lawson at 713-985-3807 or dlawson@smec.org.

- IN MEMORIAM - Glenn Meschko

Glenn Meschko, Director of Student Ministries at St. Martin's Episcopal Church in Houston, died suddenly on Sunday, Sept. 6, 2026, just weeks after joining the Parish Staff.

Glenn Meschko began his role on July 27, working alongside the Rev. Dr. Jordan Hylden, Madison Vanacore and Deja Colburn, and coordinating with Children's Ministry leaders Rozlyn Cline and Ursella Rylander. He was formally welcomed at a Family Movie Night on the Lawn on Saturday, Aug. 29.

In his brief time on Staff, he left a lasting impression through his warmth, spiritual depth and collegiality and he had ambitious plans to build a Student Ministries community that engaged young people, parents and the wider Parish.

Before coming to St. Martin's, Meschko served at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Corpus Christi. He is survived by his wife, Keri, and their children, Eli and Grace.

The Rev. Dane E. Boston shared the news with the Parish, reflecting on words from the Book of Common Prayer's Commendation and affirming the community's hope in the resurrection. Middle and high school students, who had been set to celebrate the first Life Groups gathering of the year with Glenn, instead gathered to mourn him together.

Glenn Meschko is remembered for dreaming big and giving himself fully to deepening young people's faith — a life cut short on the threshold of new beginnings, but one that leaves an enduring mark on the community he had just begun to serve.

On Aug. 29, the Rev. Dane E. Boston welcomed Glenn Meschko as the Director of Student Ministries during the Movie Night on the Lawn.

On Aug. 23, Glenn Meschko — standing next to Madison Vanacore, Student Minister — met with parents and students during the Ministry Fair.

At St. Martin's, we believe that children are not simply the future of the church, but children are the church! We take Jesus' teaching to "Let the little children come to me, and do not hinder them." (Matthew 19:14).

Our Children's Ministry team, led by Rozlyn Cline and Ursella Rylander, partners with dedicated parents and Sunday School teachers to offer age-appropriate Bible curriculum that fosters spiritual growth and nourishment.

GALAXY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL TAKES OFF on an Unforgettable, Faith-Filled Adventure

The countdown began June 8, and by the time it reached zero, the Parish Life Center, Activity Center and outdoor areas were filled with 268 children ready for liftoff. This year's theme, "Galaxy: Launching Kids on a Mission of God's Love," sent our crew on a four-day cosmic journey — blasting off each morning with worship and a countdown before rotating through "Mission Control" Bible lessons, "zero-gravity" games, space-themed crafts and Outreach projects.

This year also marked the launch of The Fifth Element, a special program for fourth- and fifth-graders. Each day, a different St. Martin's priest taught their Bible lesson, followed by an off-Campus visit to one of our Mission Partner locations.

Thank you to our crew leaders, teachers, snack and decorating teams, greeters, teen mentors and everyone who encouraged each child and helped make this mission a success. And a big thank you to the Rev. Dane Boston, who graciously agreed to get slimed at the conclusion of our VBS mission!

Amigos and Amistad: Building Family in Bolivia

For more than 30 years, Parishioners from St. Martin's have spent unforgettable weeks building family with the children of Amistad Mission in Cochabamba

BUILDING RELATIONSHIPS ACROSS BORDERS —

Director of Global Outreach Ministries Courtney Kearns and Parishioners Carrie Eickenroht, Samantha Hutchison, Sharyn Short, Joe Short and Shelley Adams share a moment with an Amistad Mission resident and Rosy Romero during the 2025 mission trip to Cochabamba, Bolivia.

Amistad Mission provides family-based homes for children who can no longer live with their biological families, while also working with families and young adults to address circumstances that can lead to child abandonment. For the St. Martin's travelers, the trip offered a glimpse of Christian community expressed through ordinary acts of welcome: sharing meals, playing together, worshipping, praying, and simply being present.

As the Parish prepares to return to Amistad Mission in June 2027, six travelers look back at the trips they took in 2023 and 2025. From July 28 through Aug. 4, 2023, six Parishioners of St. Martin's Episcopal Church traveled to Cochabamba, Bolivia, to visit Amistad Mission. Accompanied by Director of Global Outreach Ministries Courtney Kearns, the group flew to Miami, where they met up with Chris King, U.S. Executive Director of Amistad Mission, before continuing to Cochabamba, Bolivia. What awaited them was a week they would carry home in their hearts: days full of laughter, hugs and holy ground shared with the children and staff of Amistad — a community built on the simple, radical idea that every child deserves a family.

The group doesn't travel light. As Parishioner and volunteer Carrie Eickenroht recalled on the 2023 trip, "Each one of us took a checked suitcase full of arts and crafts for the children, including the roughly 200 teddy bears that Chris carried with him and that the customs officials eyed with suspicion, certain Chris meant to resell them." The story is a lighthearted reminder that even a mission trip involves plenty of logistics.

Once there, the days filled quickly. The group played in parks around town, and climbed San Pedro Hill to see Cristo de la Concordia, the world's second-tallest statue of Jesus. They shared ice cream treats, hosted a hamburger cookout for children across multiple Amistad houses, made bead bracelets, painted fingernails, attended Mass and joined in daily devotionals. One evening, the group enjoyed a pizza dinner with teenagers who aged out of the Villa; another dinner beneath the Jesus statue with Amistad graduates — young adults, Eickenroht noted, who "all seem to be doing great and enjoying successful careers."

Returning in 2025

Eickenroht returned to Amistad from June 25-30, 2025, and found the welcome unchanged. "The kids were all so loving and again, welcoming," she said. "At least they 'seemed' to remember me." She reflected that "the work being done at Amistad sets an example that I wish many other organizations followed."

For fellow traveler Joe Short, the trip was his first. "All the wonderful people who work there and care for the families are so impressive," he said. "The idea of homes with Mamas and Tías (aunts), to raise and guide children who are no longer with their own families is such a special way to turn the children's world around for the better. The Christian love is everywhere, and it was felt the moment we arrived at Amistad. It shows how they are raised to take care of each other," he said, "as we saw in the adults that we were able to have dinner with."

Samantha Hutchison had waited years for the chance to make the trip. "I'm so blessed to have finally made this year's trip with my fellow Parishioners and friends from St. Martin's," she said. "It was truly a life- and heart-changing experience!" We were welcomed as part of the family, making it very difficult to leave on the final day of the trip."

Sharyn Short echoed that sense of instant belonging. "From the minute we arrived, we all received welcoming hugs and smiles and tugging from the little ones asking us to come and play!" she said. "The love and joy that fill Amistad Mission is immense. I felt honored to have the opportunity to enter their community for a short week and I feel blessed by the experience. I think about and pray for these children and their community every day."

Reese, a student and a longtime volunteer with the trip who has known the children of Casa San Martín for years, reflected on the same closeness. "The children and mamá are warm and welcoming; they are prayerful servants of God, and they are confident and close-knit," Reese said. Describing the days spent doing crafts, playing soccer, worshipping and sharing meals, Reese added, "The kids at Amistad seem to have innately grasped the significance of being present and connecting with those around them. The kids anticipate the visit of their 'amigos' from St. Martin's every year."

Ellen Ford was especially moved by the family structure that anchors life when she visited Amistad in 2023. "Mama Isabel and Soñia provide a true family environment for several sibling groups. It was very heartwarming to see the children interact with each other in playful, loving and respectful ways." The group also spent a day with participants in Amistad for Families, a program addressing the root causes of child abandonment — and spent time with young adult graduates learning to live independently through technical school and employment. "Truly an impressive group of young people," Ellen said.

The Team Behind the Trip

Behind the scenes, a dedicated team made the week possible. There are dedicated translators, a group driver and a chef who provides meals throughout the stay at La Morada, the group's accommodations. "Everyone is to be commended for their work and dedication to those children," Eickenroht said, "special gifts from God."

For the St. Martin's travelers, the most meaningful moments were often the simplest: a shared meal, a game, a prayer, a conversation, or a child reaching out a hand to invite them to play. They arrived as visitors, but the experience left them feeling like amigos — reminding them that Christian mission is as much about receiving as it is about giving.

As Ellen put it, summing up what so many in the group felt: "Amistad Mission is truly serving as the hands and feet of Jesus in Bolivia." Shelley Adams reflected on the trip's impact. "Casa San Martín was so welcoming to all of us without even knowing us. It is so encouraging to see the siblings and the warmth they have as family in the house. They seem to all have a special bond, one that was developed and nurtured at Amistad."

As St. Martin's prepares for its next Amistad Mission trip in June 2027, another group of Parishioners will have the opportunity to cross borders, build relationships and discover where God is already at work.

Parishioners Find Their Space in Ministry

On Aug. 23, Parishioners filled the Activity Center and gym from 10:15 to 11 a.m. for a space-themed Ministry Fair featuring programs, groups and events offered throughout the year. Ministry leaders and volunteers shared information, answered questions and welcomed Parishioners of all ages as they explore opportunities to connect, grow and serve. The Rev. Dane E. Boston opened the event with a prayer and encouraged everyone to find ways to connect with the ministries of St. Martin's in the new program year. Many thanks to all those who helped make the fair a success and to all who serve and put their spiritual gifts to work!

Worshipping Like it's 1776

On July 5, St. Martin's marked the nation's 250th anniversary with a historic observance. For the first time in the Parish's history, the Traditional services used the 1662 Book of Common Prayer, the prayer book in use in the Church of England at the time of the American Revolution. A specially designed worship booklet reflected the typography and style of an 18th-century prayer book and included historic prayers, with the prayers for King George III crossed out to reflect the actions taken by American congregations during the Revolutionary era.

The services offered worshipers an opportunity to experience a portion of the Anglican tradition as it might have been encountered in the years surrounding 1776.

Parish Choir Sings the National Anthem at Daikin Park

On June 30, our Parish Choir sang the National Anthem before the Houston Astros took on the Minnesota Twins at Daikin Park. Parishioners filled Section 105 to cheer on the Astros and support their fellow parishioners as the Parish Choir opened the evening with a memorable musical performance. The Astros went on to beat the Twins 6-4, capping a memorable evening of music, fellowship and baseball.

The Parish Choir rehearses before walking onto the baseball field to sing the National Anthem.

Blessed Creatures Great and Small

From furry to feathered and scaly, and everything in between, each October, St. Martin's opens its doors (and lawn) to creatures great and small for the annual Blessing of the Animals at the Wayside Chapel.

Held in honor of the Feast of St. Francis of Assisi, this beloved Parish tradition invites Parishioners and neighbors alike to bring their pets for a moment of blessing, gratitude and celebration.

Parishioner Elionne Walker Belden reflected on the service's meaning to her family: "For 35 years, we've had all our dogs blessed and our daughter's menagerie — Rhode Island Red chickens which she later showed at the Houston Livestock Show & Rodeo; a cat; several hedgehogs; and a goose."

Elionne and Rick Belden with their 2-year-old Havanese, Hastings.

Observed each year on Oct. 4, the Feast of St. Francis honors the 13th-century friar remembered for his deep love of God's creation. For Francis, the natural world was not simply something to be admired, but a reflection of God's goodness made up of fellow creatures worthy of care and thanksgiving. His famous "Canticle of the Creatures" praises God through "Brother Sun," "Sister Moon," and the many elements and creatures of creation.

The Book of Occasional Services includes a Blessing of the Animals, reminding worshipers that God's animals inhabit the skies, the land and the sea, and that human beings share the Earth with them.

Stories about Francis' extraordinary relationship with animals have helped make him especially beloved as the patron saint of animals and the environment. He is famously associated with preaching to birds and gently taming the Wolf of Gubbio. Whether understood as historical events or treasured traditions, these stories capture something essential about the saint: his conviction that all creation belongs within God's loving care.

The Episcopal Church continues this tradition through its liturgical resources for St. Francis Day. The Book of Occasional Services includes a Blessing of the Animals, reminding worshipers that God's animals inhabit the skies, the land and the sea, and that human beings share the Earth with them. The service gives thanks for the animals entrusted to our care and calls us to reflect God's own compassion for all creation.

Parishioners gather each year outdoors not only to celebrate the companionship and joy their animals bring, but to give thanks for the gift of creation and the responsibility that comes with caring for it.

BLESSING OF THE ANIMALS SERVICE

Sunday, Oct. 4 • 5 p.m. • Wayside Chapel
